

MYP Coordinator

My previous posts have all been challenging developmental projects, in terms of both facility design and the evaluation of programmes that happen within the modern school library. These have been in the Australia, the USA, Thailand, People's Republic of China and most recently at the Chinese International School in Hong Kong. I am excited by the Stonehill project and see my role as MYP coordinator as an opportunity to support students during the sometimes difficult adolescent years. The combination of a whole school role such as Librarian, with the role of MYP coordinator helps to give me a holistic view of the school as well as the interface of each of the programmes that run here. I am looking forward to working along side staff, students and parents as we create a centre of excellence in education at Stonehill.
